

A week can be too long when one does not know what to do...

A week is too short if one has a lot of issues that you want to see covered. I recall the lectures of Prof Verweij, with an impressive, but theoretical approach to ethics. I understand you kept her longer than planned.

The lecture of General Ammon, - an experienced soldier- showed the opposite side. How it works in the real world.

We have been proud as ACOM to be able to present the interim results of the research of Professor Demasure.

Gerard and his team have done their best to give you an overview of Catholicism in the Netherlands . As well we have tried to give you an impression of the Dutch society of which the service man and women are an integral part.

I remind you about I said in my opening remarks. ACOM is a union, and has the well being of its members in its constitution. This week you all have been temporary members of ACOM..

And thus ...your well being has been our target.

Mister Kloss, I hope the efforts of ACOM, have enabled you to conduct a conference as wanted.

I say sorry if things went wrong.

As the Dutch member of AMI I look forward to send a tem to next years conference, I wish you, Mister Kloss, all the best for the future of AMI.

You fellow delegates I hope you enjoyed your stay in this 2008 AMI Conference and I wish you a safe travel back home.

God bless you all.
